

Good news! People are now able to buy their postage online, without any stamps, for the first time under a new free initiative from the Royal Mail.

Customers pay for postage  over the internet for first-class, second-class, recorded, special and international deliveries.

A Royal Mail spokesperson said that this initiative demonstrated how they were committed to making life easier for their millions of customers.

Marking checklist

Document opened, edited and printed as above
Document saved using the new filename post1new
The word-processing application closed